Dr. Larry Stone Attends American Dental Association Annual Meeting

(October 2016 – Doylestown, PA) – Dr. Larry Stone, a dentist with a family and cosmetic dentistry practice in Doylestown, attended the Annual Meeting of the American Dental Association (ADA), of which he is a member, held October 20-24 in Denver, Colorado.

The ADA's annual meeting brings together thousands of practicing dentists from throughout the world who share their experiences, network and attend continuing education sessions to bolster their proficiencies in the practice of dentistry. As a member of the Second District Valley Forge Scientific Program Committee, Dr. Stone attended many programs as a "scout," evaluating potential speakers for our local dental community.

This year's distinguished speaker was Melala Yousafzai, the youngest recipient ever of the Nobel Peace Prize and founder of an international organization to fund and encourage education for young women worldwide. She spoke about her experiences in Pakistan advocating for the rights of young women and her hopes for the future. She also thanked the dental community for improving her own mother's dental situation at a time of crisis.

"One of the best ways to stay current within our profession is to be active within the ADA," remarks Dr. Stone. "Attending these meetings allows me to better understand what those in my profession experience as well as learn new techniques and products to better serve my patients."
