Dr. Larry Stone Attends Two National Dental Meetings in Washington D.C.

(November 2015 – Doylestown, PA) – Dr. Larry Stone, a dentist with a family and cosmetic dentistry practice in Doylestown, recently attended two national annual meetings for dentists held in Washington, D.C: The American College of Dentists Annual Meeting and Convocation held at the Grand Hyatt Washington from November 4-5, 2015 and the 2015 Annual Meeting of the American Dental Association held November 5-10, 2015 at the Walter E. Washington Convention Center.

Dr. Stone attended presentations on sleep apnea, the latest findings on saliva and the future of dentistry among others as part of his continuing education in the field of dentistry. Dr. Stone will take back program ideas to the Greater Philadelphia Valley Forge Dental Conference where he serves on their program committee, and to the Montgomery Bucks Dental Society where he serves as Chairman of continuing education

“I am happy to represent my local organizations at these national conferences as a program scout,” remarks Dr. Stone. “The caliber of presenters is truly outstanding and their topics run the gamut from recent scientific gains to social media. There is much to keep abreast of in the field of dentistry and these meetings offer a tremendous opportunity to keep current.”
